1.8 KEYS TO SUCCESS

PRICE COMPETITIVENESS – This is a highly competitive industry but the market is not that price sensitive more especially if their request are customized, but in terms of mass production one needs to cut down on profit margins and all overheads will be carried by moving big volumes (economies of scale) and as a result we'll be able to cut down costs and this will enable us to pass our price advantage to the end customer.

QUALITY – In this industry it is imperative for an organization to provide quality services and products, which encompass a good design, with the right durable material at the right size because these are the three elements that the customer takes as judgmental criteria when purchasing any of the service or product, but more emphasis is placed on durability (longer lasting).

CUSTOMISATION – Due to size of the organization the customers can get a more personalized service, a certain amount of flexibility from the organization itself which simply means the customer can get exactly what they want from the company in the right quality, quantity and time. We've also planned to produce and stick to our line of production.
